PROPOSED SALE OF C.E.R.

SOVIET DELEGATION ISSUE MEMORANDUM

Moscow, July 8.

A MEMORANDUM which the Soviet delegation submitted to the Tokyo Conference which is discussing the possibility of the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway to Manchukuo has been released for publication.

The memorandum concerns the main principles governing the redemption of the C.E.R. by Manchukuo and it was read by M. Yuremoff, the head of the delegation, at a meeting of the conference held on July 3.

It estimates that the expenditure on the railway up to 1931 totalled 411,000,000 gold roubles, but it agrees to the redemption at a cost of 250,000,000 gold roubles, half of which the Soviet agree to receive in goods.

Guarantees.

The memorandum stipulates that there must be guarantees in regard to the freedom of transit on the C.E.R. for Soviet freights and passengers on advantageous terms.

The Usuri Railway must be guaranteed a definite quantity of freights arriving by the C.E.R. Soviet goods must receive most favoured nation treatment and the interests of Soviet citizens and Soviet employees of the railway must be guaranteed.

Since this memorandum was read, the "Manchukuo" delegation has discovered that it "is unable to find in any treaty anything that can be interpreted as confirming Soviet ownership of the railway."

IRELAND'S NEW MOVE

MAKING TARIFFS PERMANENT

DUBLIN, July 7.

A GOVERNMENT Bill has been issued which empowers the Council of Ministers to make permanent certain emergency tariffs imposed in connection with the economic war with Britain.

The duties which will come under the proposal include those on wearing apparel, up to sixty per cent., coal, five shillings a ton, cement, electrical machinery and articles mainly of steel and iron, up to twenty per cent.—Reuter.

JAPANESE GOODS IN GERMANY

DUMPING CAUSES ANXIETY

BERLIN, July 8.

THE dumping of Japanese goods in Germany during recent months is causing anxiety at Hamburg. Japanese firms are also gaining a footing in Germany's foreign markets, with the result that business prospects for German exporters to China, India, Africa and Australia have become difficult.

In many cases German firms have had to give up the competition because they are unable to compete with Japanese prices.

It is argued that European and American exporting States should come to an agreement with Japan to bind the latter to more normal competition.—Reuter.

TREASURY BILLS

HIGHER RATES IN LONDON

LONDON, July 7.

THE amount applied for to-day's Treasury bills at three months was 233,900,000 and the amount allotted was 242 millions. The average rate per cent. was 10/4.85d. as compared with 8/9.55d. last week.—British Wireless.

Moscow, July 8.

Lieutenant James J. Matern, the 29-year-old American aviator, who disappeared after leaving Khabarovsk on June 15, on his round-the-world flight, and who was reported safe at Anadirchukotka, a small Siberian town, yesterday, has now explained the reasons for his long silence.

Lieut. Matern states that he was forced down in a desolate waste, 100 miles from Anadirchukotka, owing to the breaking down of his engine. Three weeks elapsed before he was able to transmit a telegram from the nearest office.—Reuter.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.

Lieut. Matern's machine is completely smashed according to a message picked up by a coast-guard cutter.—Reuter.

International Lawn Bowls Results

INDIA TO MEET SCOTLAND IN SEMI-FINAL

PORTUGAL GOES DOWN IN FIRST ROUND

The first round of the International Lawn Bowls Tournament was played at the K.C.C. yesterday evening and the event excited a lot of interest, there being a very large gathering to follow the fate of the respective nationalities.

England accounted for Portugal, India beat Wales, the Filipinos got the better of the Irishmen, while Scotland had things all her own way against Australia.

Saturday's Results

The Club de Recreio lost their position at the top of the senior league table on Saturday when they went under to the K.C.C. team, losing on all three rinks.

The Bowling Green visited the Police and came away with full points while in the Dock Derby which was played at Taikoo, the home team got the points. The match between Craigengower and Civil Service was not played as a tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Holdman.

There were only three matches in the second division. The Bowling Green took full points from the Indians in somewhat effortless manner, while the K.C.C. only just managed to snatch victory from the Police being up by three shots at the end of the game. The Electric R.C. were ousted by the Club de Recreio.

GRIMMITT AND OMAR IN DEADLY FORM

The success of England over Portugal yesterday was mainly due to the excellent performance of the English skip, Grimmer who time after time played wonderful bowls. Bradbury was one of the strongest link in the team and Hampton as No. 1 also was responsible for good work, but Cullen seemed to strike a bad patch yesterday. Luz had not the support from his team that Grimmer enjoyed and although Portugal was leading by 10-6 at the end of the eighth end England drew level and went ahead to lead by 15 to 11 by the seventeenth end. The last end found the Portuguese side with eight points to get for a tie, which was impossible with the England playing so well. The Portuguese however managed to score two in the last end to lose by six shots in all.

India's Win Brilliant.

The Indians had quite a time accounting for Wales, as the latter team struck a good patch early on and had the Indians all out to keep up. There was nothing in it over the first dozen ends, but thereafter the Indian's superiority began to tell and Omar's brilliant work as skip slowly but surely told its tale. India will be meeting Scotland in the next round, and if the team can reproduce yesterday's form, their passage into the final is a foregone conclusion.

Scotland Wins.

Scotland had nothing to do to account for the weak Australian team and led from start to finish. The Australians as the score below will show, went down by the heaviest margin of the afternoon.

Filipinos Cause Surprise.

The Philippines accounted for Ireland in comfortable fashion and this was indeed a surprise result. The whole team played well together and backed up their skip exceptionally well. Bass was a deadly form and supported by Espina who as No. 1 always had something to say and Atienza who was very accurate at No. 2 Bass had things practically all his own way. The Filipinos led from start to finish.

THREE SWIMMING GALAS ON SATURDAY

V.R.C. AND Y.M.C.A. HOLD NIGHT
FETES

CHINESE ATHLETIC EN FETE AT NORTH POINT

There were no fewer than three swimming galas on Saturday and supporters of local swimming were hard put to it to decide which entertainment they should see. The V.R.C. and the Y.M.C.A. both staged very successful meetings and the standard reached in both Clubs was at time very high. The Chinese Athletic Association also held their monthly meeting and the occasion proved a great success.

ROZA GIVES GREAT DIVING EXHIBITION

At the V.R.C. fete, which was attended by a large gathering including Mrs. Borrett, wife of Major-General O. C. Borrett, the handicapping was a feature of the sport and close finishes were the order of the day. Even in the "C" and "D" Class events the handicapper did his work so efficiently that there was at times great difficulty in judging the winner.

The 75 yards Medley race was the event of the day and the event fell to E. B. da Roza who swam very well indeed to snatch victory from T. Paget. Roza and Paget were almost together over the first length, which had to be breast stroke. In the back stroke over the second length Roza obtained a slight lead over Paget which he kept right up till the end. In the final length home, Paget tried hard to reduce the lead that Roza had obtained but failed to do so by a matter of a foot. H. M. Remedios was close up to the leaders all the way, but his back stroke and free style found him just a bit behind and he had to be satisfied with third place.

One of the best diving exhibition seen for some time was given by E. da Roza, the Colony's champion, who incidentally won the event for diving from the Spring-board. The team race (medley) was very exciting while the water polo formed a very suitable ending to an enjoyable night's swimming.

Y.M.C.A. FETE.

There was plenty of good fun at the Y.M.C.A. where the ingenuity of the organisers resulted in some novel and interesting races. The team race, four ladies against six men, each to swim one length, was something new, but from the start it was evident that the men could never to catch up. The men had to be (mathematically) fifty per cent. faster than the ladies to dead-heat and of course they could not show that margin of superiority.

The Hong team race was another interesting feature and it was only after a gruelling struggle that the Hong Kong Bank won from the A.P.C. with Jardines third. The Bank lead at the start, but the A.P.C. picked up towards the end and provided a thrilling finish in which they were only just beaten. The novelty race was quite an amusing one and taken all in all the night's entertainment, so far as the swimming went, was excellent. As in the V.R.C. dancing followed the sports.

CHINESE ATHLETIC.

The Chinese Athletic Association drew thousands of spectators to their sports meeting, where the principal item was a medley race for a team of three. The Young Companion Athletic Association won this race with the Chinese Civil servants coming in second. The V.R.C. entered a team but had to be satisfied with third place.

The fifty metres race open to football players was won by Loo Hon Cheong while a novel race was included in the form of a "Brother and Sister" race where two members of the same family had to share a 100 metres between them. The tug of war was very amusing indeed and here also there was a good evening's aquatic entertainment.

KIDNAPPED MAN RESCUED

SHANGHAI GANGSTERS
WOUNDED IN POLICE RAID

Shanghai, July 2.—A series of successful raids by officers of the Settlement Police had a thrilling climax at 9 o'clock last night when the son of a wealthy silk merchant, held to ransom for the past twelve days, was rescued from a Rue Lafayette house where he was being kept hidden under armed guard, after a pistol battle on the roofs in which two gangsters were wounded. The kidnapped man, Sung Meng Yi, aged about 26 years, an employee of the Bank of China, was carried off by an armed gang while travelling in his motor-car along Sinza Road, near Kiaochow Road, on June 20.

Acting on secret information received, police commenced a roundup of suspected characters about 8 o'clock on Saturday evening. Sixteen persons were arrested at various addresses. Yesterday evening, Louza Police learned that the kidnappers were located at 336D, Rue Lafayette, one of a row of three-storey semi-foreign style dwellings, to which a party of about 25 Chinese detectives and police from Louza Station proceeded.

Police Force Entrance.

Surrounding the house, police then forced an entrance. All doors having been secured, all the occupants who may have been on the ground floor had fled by the time the raiders gained admission, but in a room upstairs the kidnapped man was found unarmed. Armed guards had meanwhile put up a fairly stiff resistance to their pursuers, attempting to escape by the roof. A fusillade of shots was fired by police, and two of the gangsters were brought down while endeavouring to get away over the tops of adjoining houses, one being shot in the arm and the other grazed on the forehead, besides receiving injuries in a fall.

Two Chinese men and two women were arrested at the house, and three pistols seized from the armed guards. The accused are expected to be brought up for remand before the Second Special District Court to-day.—A.C.B.N.

"HELL BELOW"

A MAELSTROM OF ADVENTURE

Thrills below the surface, on the sea and in the air combine to create a sensational background for a stirring romance in "Hell Below," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's amazing drama of Uncle Sam's submarines, showing from Thursday at the Queen's with Robert Montgomery,
Walter Huston, Madge Evans,
Jimmy Durante, Eugene Pallette and Robert Young as the principals in a maelstrom of adventure and excitement.

The picture, filmed with the co-operation of the United States Navy, depicts the most remarkable underwater shots of submarines in action yet seen on the screen.
Against this authentic background is played the romance of Montgomery, as the young lieutenant in love with Madge Evans, the daughter of his commander.

Vivid Heart Interest.

Their attempt to defy conventions and traditions only to find in the end that there is only one satisfactory solution to a conflict between love and duty provides the main thread of the narrative.
The girl's loyalty to a husband crippled in an airplane fall, and Montgomery's final heroic gesture to redeem his self-respect are the human incidents woven into a vivid heart-interest story.

A spectacular air raid over an Italian town, hair-raising encounters between submarines and battle-ships, the sensational rescue of a submarine doomed at the floor of the ocean, and the bottling up of a harbour full of enemy ships are among the other thrilling incidents in the filmation of Commander Edward Ellsberg's novel.
"Pigeons."

Montgomery Is Great.

Robert Montgomery gives a performance of unrivalled excellence as Lieutenant Knowlton and Miss Evans makes the most of her opportunities as the commander's daughter. The commander himself is made an outstanding figure in the capable hands of that sterling actor, Walter Huston. Jimmy Durante and Eugene Pallette make a riotous comedy pair. Durante almost "stealing" the picture in a scene in which he attempts to fight a kangaroo. Robert Young also contributes an outstanding characterization, and the remainder of the cast, including Edwin Styles,
John Lee, David Newell, Sterling Holloway and Charles Irwin, leave nothing to be desired in the way of competent supporting work.

Jack Conway may be congratulated on the direction of "Hell Below," which from the point of view of continually engrossing action, stirring characterizations, authentic settings, and brilliant photography, takes its place along with "The Big Parade" and "Cavalcade" as one of filmdom's memorable achievements.

"THE CISCO KID" AT THE CENTRAL

AN EXCITING FILM OF THE DESERT

While Warner Baxter and Edmund Lowe are rated among the really good horsemen of the screen colony, both learned some new tricks in riding while making O.
Henry's "The Cisco Kid." Fox feature attraction coming to the King's Theatre on Tuesday.

Much of the picture was filmed in the Santa Cruz desert in Arizona, and contrary to the general impression, there are deserts—and deserts.
This one happens to be, thickly covered with cacti ranging from the huge saguaros to the small but formidable bisnaga, with spiny palo verde trees, buckthorns and various other plants that are best left severely alone, either when walking or riding.

The job of piloting a horse at full speed through obstacles of this sort requires horsemanship of a high degree to avoid painful injury or worse, and the script called for many such scenes of Sergeant Dunn, alias Lowe, in hot pursuit of his old enemy, the Cisco Kid (other Baxter). The two players necessarily learned how to "venom" at full gallop much as a half-back weaves through an opposing team.
Conchita Montenegro and Nora Lane have the feminine roles in this exciting romance of the border, which was directed by Irving Cummings, and the supporting cast includes Frederick Willard, Robert-

AT THE KING'S

Will Rogers in "Too Busy to Work"

HUMOUR AND PATHOS

Will Rogers can be seen at his best in his latest picture, "Too Busy to Work," which is the feature attraction at the King's Theatre to-day. In the role of a tramp, who is searching for his wife and daughter and the man who stole them from him, Rogers has a wonderful opportunity to display his natural wit and the role of tramp seems to suit him exceptionally well.

Those who have seen Rogers before should not fail to see this picture which, to the writer's mind, is one of the best pictures yet made of this popular actor. His lazy and languid droll will make you laugh as much as his witti-cism. One scene in particular will make you roar with laughter and that is when Rogers tries to milk a cow!

The story is an unusual one and the ending quite unexpected.
Marion Nixon as the happy stepdaughter of an American judge takes the leading feminine role and she and Rogers figure in some very touching scenes, which is one of the features of "Too Busy to Work."

The Theatre is again offering a double attraction and those who have not yet seen that very versatile Chinese company of acrobats, the Chin Loo Company, should make it a point to do so. Those who have seen them will find that they are presenting a complete

FILM QUOTA ACT

HELP TO THE BRITISH PRODUCERS

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, June 25.
Final proof that the Film Quota Act has reached success that few measures attain was given by an official of the Board of Trade, who discussed the renters' returns for the past year. Compilation of the figures is not yet complete, but that the legal quota requirements have been exceeded is already definitely shown. Even more significant than the quota returns of exhibitors, who last year exceeded requirements by 15 per cent., is the disclosure concerning renters, for it shows very definitely that American companies are finding British productions to be profitable. The Quota Act has now justified itself up to the hilt, yet the coming of sound to the screen threatened to kill it. By a strange whim of fate the "disaster" has really been the salvation of the British film industry.

phers, contributing a sparkle all too rarely seen. Henry Garat as the Czar, Conrad Veidt as Prince Metternich are both splendid, and special mention should be made of Rigmold Purcell as Pepi—who is really in love with Christel. There is not a weak spot in the casting, and there are literally hundreds of "extras" all picturequely dressed in the period of the action.

ECHOES OF 1858

THE FIGHT FOR ORDERED GOVERNMENT IN HONG KONG

12.—Sir John Bowring and the "Social Evil"

January 4, 1858.

For some time past we have had it in contemplation to offer a few remarks on the celebrated Venerable Ordinance lately enacted, and destined to immortalise the name of its illustrious patron, and doubtless originator, Sir John Bowring, Governor of Hong Kong. The unpleasantness of such a task must be apparent to everyone, and we cannot in the columns of a newspaper speak out with that freedom which a subject less delicate would admit of. Knowing as we do Sir John's literary taste, and usual refinement of language, we confess to a surprise at the strange wording construction of some of the clauses of this most extraordinary act, which for the future we shall be differentially to designate as Bowring's Panacea. Enter into them argumentatively we cannot, with-out grossly offending public taste, for which His Excellency has so special a regard, but we may be permitted to bring to his notice, a few facts and statistics, which bear more particularly upon the means adopted for carrying the Panacea into effect.

Sir John being a traveller as well as a linguist must no doubt have often sojourned in the far famed city of Paris and we make no doubt also entered into its gaieties. A Benthamite too, and rigidly devoted to economy, his experience may often have been gathered of the Conciergerie where destitution, prostitution and roguery revel in their fullest extent. He may some times too have looked in at Record's Hospital and there he could both gratify his taste and enlighten his knowledge.

In his peregrinations in the capital of the French Empire, he must have heard that there are some sixty thousand unfortunate creatures whose "poverty, but not their will, consents." To attend upon these in sickness, as well as to preserve them from it, the French Government employ two hundred medical men, who are known as officiers de santé; added for which are hospitals for their reception, liberally endowed and officered by the highest medical talent in France. It is an old proverb that "if it is worth while to do a thing, it is worth while to do it well," and surely a fact so patent as the above might have induced our paternally inclined Governor to have made provisions for the effectual carrying out of his salutary plan. We may compute the unfortunate female celestials for whom His Excellency appears to have so much sympathy, at somewhere about Four Thousand, for whose special medical surveillance he has appointed One officer, who is no other than the Colonial Surgeon and whose duties are already far too heavy. A Hospital, we understand, has been secured, or rather a house rented for the purpose, with a view, we presume to see whether the thing PAYS or not. The fines, registration fees, etc., we have no space or time at present to dilate upon; they have an acquisitive appearance, and were it not that even out of so dirty a subject, there peeps as we imagine, a longing for the dirtier dollar, we should wish all success to an establishment and a law, which must if properly carried out be beneficial, but which with such provisions can only result in a failure. In other words, under the present gubernatorial regime, Bowring's Panacea stands no chance.

MR. BONAR LAW & MR. BALDWIN

Ex-Premier's Views
Revealed by His Son

MOVING SPEECH IN THE COMMONS

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, June 25.

Like a voice from the dead there broke into to-night's debate on the Foreign Office Vote an account of the thoughts and feelings of Mr. Bonar Law on the funding of our debt to the United States, accepted by him and his Government in 1921.

His son, Mr. Richard Law, rose in an almost empty House and asked for its sympathy while he dealt with the part which his father had taken in that settlement.

He spoke in the quietest way, confessing partiality, protesting a sincerity which was made evident in his studious endeavours to be fair and respect the feelings and motives of others.

"Almost Broke His Heart."

The speech inevitably resolved itself into an analysis of the difference of judgment and of attitude between Mr. Bonar Law, the Prime Minister, who accepted the settlement, and Mr. Baldwin, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who negotiated it. Mr. Baldwin was not in his place to hear the statement of the case.

Mr. Richard Law declared and showed that he had no intention of attacking Mr. Baldwin, or of acquitting Mr. Bonar Law of responsibility.

The fact that Mr. Bonar Law had to accept the terms "almost broke his heart." His responsibility, however, his son admitted was final, and in some ways greater than Mr. Baldwin's.

Mr. Baldwin was fighting for a settlement he behaved honourably and just. Mr. Bonar Law accepted it, believing it most unjust, and fraught with grave consequences. To the hour of his death he was still of that conviction.

A few days before his death Mr. Bonar Law said that he never expected the settlement to be immediately unpopular or things not to go smoothly for a time. He still dreaded the future.

His son declared that if he "had not been a very sick man" he would sooner have broken up his Government and retired, than accept the terms.

Opposed to Mr. Baldwin.

The difference of opinion between him and Mr. Baldwin was first on the moral issue. Mr. Baldwin thought that it was paramount that the country should honour its bond.

and that feeling was "almost universal." Mr. Bonar Law held that the bond was not an ordinary contract and should only be kept in the spirit. He had said, you "cannot measure blood-against money."

Secondly, on the practical issue, Mr. Baldwin thought that settlement on almost any terms would be a preliminary to the recovery of world trade, and that opinion was widely held. "A chorus of hal-lujahs, swelling from Threadneedle-street" approved the terms.

Mr. Bonar Law took the opposite view, held that world trade would be hindered by the settlement. The invasion of the Ruhr finally convinced him.

The fundamental distinction between the two statesmen, Mr. Richard Law declared, was that Mr. Bonar Law thought Mr. Baldwin was indulging hopes at the expense of reason. Mr. Bonar Law believed that hope had turned into a kind of anaesthesia, a "wish-fulfilment complex."

So Mr. Bonar Law's son concluded his brief and affecting testimony to his father's foresight by imploring the Government to make sure that any settlement now should be "based on something lasting." He hoped that they could settle the question gently by agreement. If not it should be "kicked out of the way." Any attempt to buy time again, as we did in December, would, only lose time.

Waiting for News.

The first half of the day was spent in the prolongation of expectation to a mixture of nervous tension and fear, ending in an anticlimax.

In the exchanges of question time Mr. Baldwin replied to Mr. Lansbury's pressure for a statement of the Government's intentions on the U.S. debt by the assurance that the Chancellor of the Exchequer was at the very moment working upon such a statement, but he could not make it before half-past five.

What followed may be called the farce of the three Mr. Williamses. Mr. Herbert Williams is a frequent and fluent speaker, and he talked of the Gold Standard as earnestly as if the House had nothing to think of but his opinions thereon.

Then from the back benches arose Mr. Charles Williams, a Conservative member with a gift of mock solemnity. He luxuriated in it over a series of questions to his namesake about the causes and consequences of inflation which would have taken days to answer.

Mr. Herbert Williams proceeded joyously. There came another Mr. Williams to the field—Mr. Tom Williams, a solemn Socialist of the Front Bench, to claim his share in the gathering of the clan. At length Mr. Chamberlain appeared. Then came the anti-climax. He (Continued at foot of next col.)

A COMMERCIAL EDUCATION

GOOD WORK BY CHUN
SHING TYPEWRITING ACADEMY

The Chun Sing Typewriting Agency held there 12th Term Graduation Function on Saturday at the Gloucester when the Principal read the following report:—

The Academy founded in 1929, has now on its roll no less than 215 students of different nationalities, including beside Chinese, a fair number of English, French, Russians, Portuguese and Indians.

Of the 63 candidates who took their examination this term, 60 successfully passed the test, 25 in the Junior and 35 in the Senior. The first of the Senior division recorded a speed of 62 words a minute on any machine after four months' training.

The Academy added, at the request of pupils, an Academy of Commerce, at the end of last November premises being secured at 23 Lyndhurst Terrace. It aims at providing students with a general idea of every phase of business activity. The course included such essential commercial subjects as typewriting, together with practice on calculating machines and cheque writers, shorthand, book-keeping, commercial conversation, correspondence, commercial knowledge, import and export business, shipping, warehousing, brokering, insurance, etc. These subjects are taught by fully qualified Chinese and foreign tutors. At present quite a number of pupils have enrolled, and the number is likely to increase substantially when the new term opens on July 10.

The Academy is now conducted by a board of Hon. Directors, among whom are Mr. Leung Pat Yu (J.P.), Mr. Poon Hui Cho, Mr. Chan Lim Pat (J.P.), Mr. Wong Mow Lam (J.P.) and Mr. Wong Wai chung.

I have to thank for your kind presence and for your continued valued support and co-operation, which made the establishment of the Academy possible, and it is gratifying that my efforts to fill a long felt want of the colony has met with a hearty response. The commercial students to-day are facing increasingly difficult problems in the business world under the present severe competition and prolonged trading depression and a knowledge of commerce is made more and more a necessity. The student to-day needs to be shown the business machine as a whole, without which he is ill-equipped and starts with a bad handicap. It is the object of the Academy to give the student a broad outlook on business and to enable him to pursue by himself a detailed study of the line of business in which he may be engaged or interested. I take this opportunity to congratulate the graduates and to wish them every success in their future career.

rose and said that he could say nothing. There had been unavoidable delay. He was unable to make any statement at that time. He asked that waiting should be prolonged till 10 o'clock.

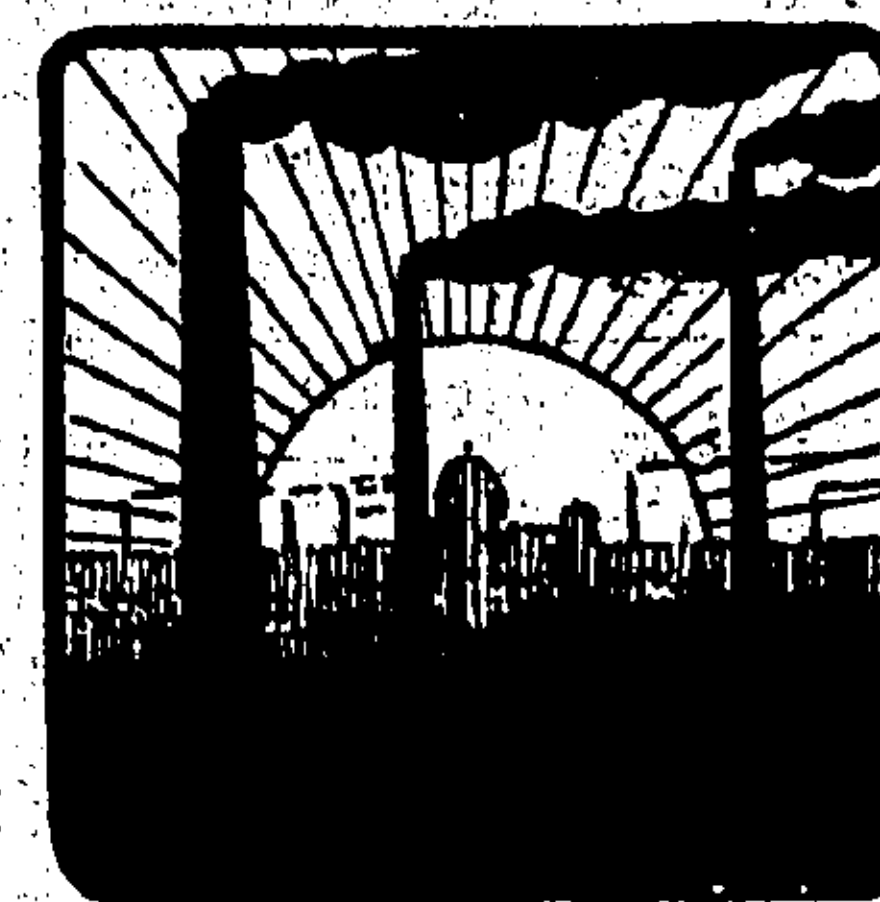

When ten o'clock came the House was crowded again, and noisily eager and again disappointed.

The Chancellor came to the table only to announce that even then he could not make a complete statement. He promised the House another statement on the matter at ten o'clock to-morrow.

After that Sir Stafford Cripps remarked that there was no use in further discussion and the House adjourned.

BREWING TRADE IN JAPAN

STATE MONOPOLY FORE-SHADOWED

FIRST STEP SEEN IN BIG MERGER

Tokyo.—An agreement was signed yesterday afternoon between Mr. Ohashi, president of the Dai Nippon Beer Company, and Mr. Nedzu, president of the Beer Kosen Kaisha, for the absorption of the latter company into the Dai Nippon. The Dai Nippon Beer is to establish a co-operative sales company with its rival, the Kirin Beer Company. It is explained that this arrangement is the precursor to a wholesale amalgamation, or even State monopoly.

Fears are expressed in many quarters that the present combine may result in an increase of prices. Mr. Takahashi, executive director of the Dai Nippon Beer Company, announces, according to the Japanese press, that brewers have no intention whatever of utilising "monopoly" power to increase prices. As the cost this year is much higher, however, the present prices will have to be adjusted, he adds. Baron Nakashima, Minister of Commerce and Industry, is resolved to warn the Dai Nippon against any unreasonable price increase.

Surprise at Quick Decision.

The above merger of the Dai Nippon Beer and the Beer Kosen has surprised all quarters in its rapid materialisation. It is said that Baron Nakashima, Minister of Commerce and Industry, rendered assistance in the negotiations between Mr. Ohashi and Mr. Nedzu, and it is further stated that the merger was the wish of the late Mr. Kynohi Magoshi, founder of the Dai Nippon Beer Company, who died recently.

The Dai Nippon Beer Company is at present capitalised at ¥80,000,000, with ¥50,000,000 paid up.

Its dividend last term was 12 per cent. and a similar dividend will be declared for the current term. The Beer Kosen Kaisha has an authorised capital of ¥20,000,000, with ¥14,000,000 paid up. Its dividend last term was five per cent. but it will be increased to 8 per cent. for the term soon ending.

The two companies, it now transpires, concluded an agreement for the establishment of a co-operative sales company on June 23. Their marketing quotas are 70.12 per cent. for the Dai Nippon and 29.88 per cent. for the Kirin for the domestic market, including Formosa and Korea, and 80.03 per cent. for the Dai Nippon and 19.97 per cent. for the Kirin for export. The co-operative sales company agreement expires at the end of December, 1937, renewable with six months' previous notice. The new breweries which the two companies are establishing in Korea as their subsidiary concerns are also to entrust their product to the co-operative sales company.

There are two outsiders, the Sakura Beer Company and the Kotobukiya Company. Sakura Beer Company is more or less in financial difficulties, and with the assistance of Mr. Ikoma, director of the Beer Kosen Kaisha, is conducting a thorough financial reorganisation. It is expected that this Company will agree to participate in the merger. The Kotobukiya, brewer of the "Orago" Beer, welcomes the merger. A wholesale merger of all Japanese beer brewers is therefore considered a possibility. It is understood in some quarters that the combine will be the basis of the State monopoly of the beer business, as of tobacco.

COLONY WATER SUPPLY

RESERVOIRS BY NO MEANS FULL ON JULY 1

According to the P.W.D. returns dated July 1, the Island Reservoirs had a total supply of 933 million gallons, compared with 1333 million gallons at the same time last year. Tytam Tuk was still 33 feet below overflow and Tytam 17 feet below overflow. Aberdeen and Pokfulam reservoirs were level with overflow, and it will be remembered that an extended supply was given to districts served from those sources.

On the Mainland the total supply was 355 million gallons, compared with 497 million gallons last year. Kowloon Main was 16 feet below overflow and the Byewash 41 feet below overflow.

Total supply was 1,218 million gallons compared with 1,830 million gallons a year ago.

On the mainland consumption of water is 15 gallons per head per day and on the Island 20.7 gallons per head per day.

Rainfall to July 1 was 24.4 inches. Since then another 4 inches have fallen bringing the total to 28.4 inches compared with an average of 42.10 inches.

CHINESE LEADER IN CHARHAR

CLAIMS SUCCESS AGAINST THE JAPANESE

Canton, July 8. South-West leaders are urged to draft a concrete plan to save China from foreign invasion, according to a telegram received here yesterday from General Fang Chen Wu, field commander of the people's anti-Japanese forces in Charhar.

General Fang narrated the misdeeds of the Nanking government leading to the submission to Japan and non-resistance to their aggression. The telegram said that there was a possibility of repelling the enemy, but General Chiang Kai Shek was more anxious to bow to the Japanese, so that he could devote his attention to wiping out the opposition within the country.

"Such humiliation is without parallel in the history of China," the telegram said. "We have captured Paocheng and Paohang from the Japanese-Manchukuo forces. We will continue to fight the enemy and are ready to make any sacrifice to that end."

In another telegram to the South-west, General Fang reported that his forces had captured large numbers of rifles, machine guns, ammunition from the enemy. The anti-Japanese troops are preparing to launch the next onslaught on Dolonor, he said, but provisions and supplies to his men are urgently needed.—Central Press.

THE KAWASAKI DOCKYARD

Makes Profit Thanks To War Orders

ALSO SUBSIDIES AND FALL OF YEN

Tokyo.—The 74th general meeting of the shareholders of the Kawasaki Dockyard Company, Limited, was held at its head offices in Kobe. Mr. Hachisaburo Hirao, the president, was in the chair, and in the course of his remarks, he said:

"It affords me a great pleasure in submitting to you a report on the business results and the statement of accounts for the first term of the year which you will note how an improvement compared with the previous term. These favourable results I should say were possible by the revived activity of industries through the Government emergency measures, the consolidation of the new state of Manchukuo, the depreciation of the yen exchange, and the Government shipbuilding subsidy scheme. I must not omit to mention that the financial readjustment of the Company has been a great assistance in restoring credit and doing business."

"During the period under review, the Company received about 330 vessels in its docks either for repairs or painting. The Company has undertaken the repair of three submarines for the Imperial Navy and the construction of three gunboats and six patrol boats for the Manchukuo Government. The Company has obtained orders for two Diesel vessels, one from the Iino Shoji and the other from the Kokusai Kisen, both under the Government shipping standard improvement scheme. It is gratifying indeed that the Company could secure these new orders at the start of its regenerated life. I regret, however, that the shipbuilding department still shows a loss."

Steel Works Benefits by Exchange. "The result of the steel works has been highly satisfactory. Due partly to the depreciated yen exchange, which renders the import extremely expensive, and partly to the prospective boom through the currency inflation, the black sheet trade markedly increased, causing prices to advance sharply. Since the U.S. left the gold standard, the situation has become unfavourable, but its effect is not reflected in the business result for the term under review. The business for plates has also seen an increase, and their uses now extend from war supplies to those for shipbuilding and bridge construction."

War Benefits Aeroplane Works. "The Manchurian affair has been keeping the Company's aeroplane works very busy. The Company has received from the War Department large orders for its standard planes. Orders for the B.W.M. engines have also been heavy. The shipping department, in co-operation with the Kawasaki Steamship Company, has been fairly active. I am glad to say that, though the freight market was worse this term than last, the Company could record some gain."

In submitting the statement of accounts, Mr. Hirao urged the shareholders present to approve the recommendation of the Directors to transfer the net profit of ¥1,106,673 to the next term. The statement of accounts and the disposal of the profit were unanimously approved.

THE DAIREN CONFERENCE

Peiping, July 8. Further provisions in the Dairen conference are as follows:—(1) Japanese troops shall be permitted to supervise places in Miyun and Kwangchow which are to be garrisoned by the reorganized irregular troops. (2) The Peiping-Shenyang Railway be under joint anti-Japanese control.

This agreement is a sequel to the Tangku truce. It was learned here that the Dairen conference will finally liquidate the Manchurian questions.—Central Press.

PRINCE'S VISIT TO ROTHESAY

"Team Work" With The King

POACHER'S OFFER OF SALMON

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, June 22. The Prince of Wales paid his first visit to Rothesay, the Royal burgh from which he derives his premier Scottish title, Duke of Rothesay.

To pay the visit he spent two nights in the train, travelling from London on Friday night to Gourock—where the destroyer Valorous was waiting to take him to the Isle of Bute—and back to London on Saturday night, arriving at Euston soon after seven yesterday morning.

On landing at Rothesay the Prince was greeted by thousands of holiday-makers and by large numbers of ex-Servicemen who were present for the annual conference of the Scottish section of the British Legion. The Prince's purpose was both to attend this conference and to receive the freedom of the burgh.

"My Oldest Scottish Title."

On receiving his Burgher's certificate in a silver casket from Provost Halliday, the Prince said: "This title, Duke of Rothesay, which I am so proud to claim, is the oldest of my Scottish titles. It dates from the 14th century, and was first held by one whose name I bear."

Over 500 years have elapsed since the creation of this title, and you in Rothesay may well have wondered how many years it would be before the present holder came to set foot in the burgh (Laughter.)

"I have refused more than one cordial invitation since I came of age to pay you a visit, and although this visit is long delayed, if it is true that since those days of Robert III., no Duke of Rothesay has entered these historic castle halls, I am doubly glad to be the first to remedy the omission."

The Prince then went to the British Legion conference and aroused laughter with the opening words of his speech. He said: "When I left the King at Ascot yesterday—highly delighted with his win—(laughter) (the King won the Hardwicke Stakes on Friday)—he asked me where I was going."

"I said, 'I am going to Rothesay, because I have been Duke of Rothesay twenty-three years and I have never paid them a visit.'"

"The King said, 'I am Duke of Rothesay nine years and I never paid them a visit. You had better throw those nine years in and pay a visit for both of us.'"

(Laughter.) The Prince added, "Not, mind you, that his Majesty or myself are proud of keeping away so long, but I think you will admit that the 'team work' is good." (Laughter.)

Won a £1 Bet.

Sir Ian Hamilton, extending a vote of thanks to the Prince, said the Prince promised at a dinner recently that he would go to Rothesay for the Legion conference, adding that he intended to wear the Duke of Rothesay tartan.

"I had firmly in my mind," said Sir Ian, "that that tartan was a beautiful blue and purple. The Prince said it contained red. I said, 'I will bet you a sovereign there is no red in it,' and the Prince replied, 'Right.'"

Amid laughter Sir Ian Hamilton paid up his lost bet, and the Prince, laughing heartily, handed the money to the Earl of Haddington for the British Legion funds, saying, "I am glad Sir Ian has paid me this debt."

After attending the conference the Prince motored to Mount Stuart for lunch as the guest of the Marquis and Marchioness of Bute.

In the afternoon the Prince played golf on the Corporation course, and in the evening visited the Rothesay Social Club for the unemployed, and spoke to many men who had been service overseas.

Turning to one man—a well-known local character—he asked, "Are you unemployed?"

"No," the man replied, "I am a poacher."

"Oh," said the Prince. "What kind of poacher?"

"A salmon poacher," he said, "and if you will give me a permit to carry on I will send you one."

relief by beautiful lynx furs. A broad brimmed hat on her golden-brown curls completed a very charming picture. She refused to be drawn into forecasts of her future plans, but said how very happy she was to be in France and how much she was enjoying her holiday.

She then settled down to the serious task of writing her signature on a huge pile of photographs—in not one of which was she wearing trousers.

ART SENSATION FOR LONDON

National Gallery Mosaics

NOTED PEOPLE AS GODS AND MUSES

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, June 22. Mosaic portraits of famous people, the men representing "gods" and the women the "muses," embedded in the entry hall of the National Gallery.

Mr. Osbert Sitwell as Apollo, Mr. Olive Bell as Bacchus, Miss Greta Garbo as the Tragic Muse. This is one of the features of important mosaic decoration schemes that have been carried out at two famous London buildings—the Bank of England and the National Gallery—of which I am able to give exclusive descriptions.

They are by the same artist, Mr. Boris Anrep, the famous Russian mosaic expert, and have been executed simultaneously during the past few years. But whereas the National Gallery decoration, already visible to the general public, will be completed by the end of this week, that at the Bank of England will not be seen in its entirety for three or four years.

Mr. Anrep has been working out the National Gallery scheme in stages. Visitors to Trafalgar-square are familiar with the two side pavements, at the top of the short flight of stairs facing the main entrance which have been in position for some time.

On the right is "Profane Love," which shows a man on a couch with women fussing over him with mirrors and brushes. The various pleasures of life are shown in a series of medallions, including a footballer, a motor-cycle pillion rider, and a flaming plum pudding.

Mr. Anrep at Work.

Across the way are the "Labours of Life," and now on the main centre landing between the two, "Apollo," who inspires the "Labours," and "Bacchus," patron of pleasures, and uniting in unwelcome alliance for the "Awakening of the Muses."

It is these "gods" and "muses" that are about to give London a sensation.

I visited the National Gallery yesterday to find Mr. Anrep supervising the finishing touches. In the middle of the latest pavement sits "Bacchus," a mapie on his shoulder, regarding "Apollo" with a somewhat pained and surprised expression, as who should say, "This is rather an intrusion." Apollo is blithely playing a reed pipe.

Mr. Sitwell as Apollo and Mr. Bell as Bacchus are unmistakable. Both are excellent portraits, executed with the tenderness that is the essence of good mosaic.

All about them are grouped the awakening "Muses." Dressed in the formal flowing garments of ancient Greece, they gaze at the two gods in gentle surprise. They include:

Hon. Mrs. Henry McLaren ("Euterpe")

Mrs. St. John Hutchinson ("Erato")

Mrs. Virginia Woolf ("Clio")

Hon. Mrs. Bryan Guinness ("Polyhymnia")

Miss Greta Garbo ("Melpomene," the Tragic Muse).

Miss Lydia Lopokova (Mrs. J. M. Keynes) ("Terpsichore").

Lady (William) Jowitt.

All save Miss Garbo are personal friends of Mr. Anrep, and gave him sittings for his original cartoon from which the mosaic was carried out. Sir William Jowitt, K.C., the ex-Attorney-General, has at his house in Upper Brook-street an example of Mr. Anrep's early work.

In each case the likeness is striking, that of Miss Lopokova being, perhaps, the most remarkable. The entire mosaic, besides being executed with a masterly technique, is full of wit. Beneath the astonished gods a snake and a terret eye each other in a slightly wary amixture. Rabbits, grasshoppers, and butterflies disport themselves happily in the alliance of man's "Jekyll and Hyde" instincts.

Mr. Anrep had his original design passed by the National Gallery board of trustees some years ago. The delay in completing the scheme was occasioned by his great work at the Bank.

DEPARTURE OF REV. STEWART

TOUCHING FAREWELL BY COLLEGE STUDENTS

The hall of St. Paul's Girls' College was packed to capacity on Saturday when a farewell presentation was made to Rev. A. D. Stewart, who will be departing from the Colony on July 18.

The Rev. P. S. E. Tso presided over the proceedings and speeches, which were made by Mr. John Poon, representing the students of St. Paul's College, by Mr. Chan Tit Yat, representing the Past Pupils of that institution, by Mr. Wong Yaw Kung, on behalf of the staff and by Mr. S. C. Young, who represented St. Paul's Church, to all of which the Rev. Stewart replied in touching terms, referring to the regret with which he was now severing so many pleasant recollections.

The earlier part of the proceedings were brought to a close with Benediction by the Rev. A. D. Stewart.

JAPAN'S ESTIMATES

ARAKI SAYS IT WILL ALL DEPEND ON ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

Tokyo.—The War Office authorities met a second time to discuss the policy of compiling the Departmental estimates for the next fiscal year. They are paying close attention to developments in Manchuria and the progress of deliberations at the World Economic and the Disarmament Conferences, as they have much to do with the new estimates of their Department. It will be some time before they can reach final decisions in such circumstances.

General Araki, Minister for War, is quoted by the Asahi as saying that if appropriations are to be made for all new enterprises as well as for the outstanding schemes, the new estimates of his Department will reach enormous figures. With regard to the Manchurian affair expenditure, the War Minister hopes that it will be less than in the present fiscal year, but much depends on the activity of bandits in the season of the full growth of kaoliang, and the general state of peace and security in Manchukuo.

He would like to see the scheme to replenish war stocks completed in the next fiscal year at an estimated cost of ¥250,000,000, but the matter must be carefully studied in its relation to the state of national finance.

International relations to-day are of great complexity, and the results of the World Economic Conference and the Disarmament Conference are destined to have far-reaching effects on domestic administration and national defence. Such being the case, it is difficult to determine the War Office estimates quickly. Rough estimates may be tentatively drawn up in the near future, but before they are made final, all circumstances developing at home and abroad must be taken into careful consideration.

CANTON-SHANGHAI AIR SERVICE

Canton, July 8.

Hopping off this morning from the Pearl River, the amphibian aeroplane of the China National Aviation Corporation, visiting Canton started its return trip to Shanghai via the coastal ports. The plane carried the passengers who arrived Canton on Thursday morning and should reach Shanghai late this afternoon.

It is expected that regular service will be started by the end of this month, and there will be four trips a week. It is proposed that the planes will carry only mails and no passengers. Two large amphibian planes will be used for regular trips between Canton and Shanghai via ports.

In future passenger fare will be $250 Mox, but details concerning passenger transportation will be decided at a later date.—Central Press.

THE BRITISH CHEMICAL INDUSTRY

One of the most successful of British industries at the present time is the chemical industry. This was not always the case. Before the Great War the lead in many departments of the chemical industry was taken by Germany. The war revealed the danger of allowing an industry so vital to the security of the country to be in the hands of other people than its own nationals. Since the war the whole British chemical industry has been overhauled. Even before Great Britain embraced a general tariff, in the autumn of 1931, there had been protection of certain branches of the chemical industry, chiefly the dye industry. This section of the industry had been protected by "key-industry" legislation, that is to say, the dye-industry was regarded as being of exceptional importance—as being the basis of many other industries—that, despite the general free trade policy of Great Britain, protection was extended to it. Since Great Britain's departure from free trade generally, the British chemical industry has enjoyed a much wider measure of protection.

That protection has no doubt been very beneficial to the home market, but tariffs in one country call for tariffs in others, and in the long run their benefits and drawbacks may be said to cancel out. But the British chemical industry has by no means relied on protective tariffs for its prosperity. Long before many other British industries had begun the process of "rationalization" called for by the great world slump, the British chemical industry had begun to set its house in order. Amalgamation followed amalgamation until at length four outstanding great firms finally united to form that vast enterprise, the Imperial Chemical Industries. Visitors to London who stand on the East bank of the Thames (the Surrey side) looking across to the Houses of Parliament will see next them the vast pile of offices which houses the administrative staff of this colossal enterprise. As it is not too much to say that the history of "I.C.I.," as the company is termed in short, is the story of the present-day British industry, a study of the chairman's remarks at its recent annual meeting is not without interest. What follows here must not be construed as Sir Harry McGowan's actual words, but a brief survey of certain of the company's activities based on his speech.

First, one may take the position of the company in regard to research. In no industry is the importance of research into new materials, and methods of producing and using them, more clearly recognised and provided for. During the whole of last year all the research laboratories of the company were kept in full commission. Collaboration was maintained with the research laboratories of the Universities, to mutual advantage, and, on the other hand, the technical and commercial knowledge gained by the company was freely placed at the disposal of other industries served by them. The annual expenditure on research of I.C.I. in Great Britain alone exceeds half-a-million pounds, all of which is charged against revenue. The major part of such research is naturally technical, but the company takes a proper and lively interest in pure research in the chemical and other sciences which lie at the roots of the several sections of its industries.

The general reader is naturally interested in new products produced by the industry. Recently the I.C.I.'s new products have consisted mainly of those which had previously been imported. Sir Harry McGowan must have felt satisfaction in announcing that so far as the manufacture of heavy chemicals is concerned Great Britain is now self-supporting. Under the heading of heavy chemicals comes, among other things, nitrogenous fertilizers, and heavy organic products the use of which is very rapidly growing. Indeed, the rate of discovery in all sections increases rather than slackens.

As is generally known now, the treatment of coal is one of the largest sections of the chemical industry. From coal comes explosives and dyes, and the problem of how best to extract these valuable properties from raw coal is one of the chief problems of the industry. The older method of extraction was known as the carbonization of coal, that is to say, tar was first extracted from raw coal and the resultant tar further treated by hydrogenation to obtain the desired chemicals and dyes. The newer process is that of direct hydrogenation.

In the past year I.C.I. has continued its research work on direct hydrogenation with marked success and it is satisfied that this is the correct policy. Indeed, large scale commercial developments of the I.C.I.'s hydrogenation process now only waits on progress in regard to a limited number of economic factors. The production of synthetic nitrates (for fertilizers) is one of the greatest departments of I.C.I.'s activities, and in this section the chairman was glad to announce an agreement between the chief producers of synthetic and natural fertilizers which is doing something to mitigate the condition of wasteful competition in this General Feng Yu Hsiang, commander-in-chief of the people's anti-Japanese forces, has secured an important ally in the person of General Liu Kuei Tang who deserted the Manchukuo's forces in order to fight against them and their masters, the Japanese. Liu was formerly a commander of the volunteer forces but by dint of circumstances he was obliged to shift to the Manchukuo's troops so as to save his men from annihilation. He suffered mental torture, according to the telegram, while in

As the I.C.I. company has such vast ramifications throughout the world, it has, of course, the greatest interest in world trade recovery. It is good to learn, therefore, that the company looks forward hopefully to the results of this year's trading and to the continued prosperity of the company. While naturally hopeful of a successful issue of the World Economic Conference in removing artificial barriers to trade, the words of its chairman in this matter are worthy of quotation in extenso. "Though," said Sir Harry McGowan, "the benefits of a paper money standard and tariff protection may prove transitory in this changing world, efficiency in administration, manufacture, and distribution will hold fast through every emergency." Such self-reliance, outlook is calculated to carry I.C.I. far on the road to enhanced prosperity.

Canton, July 10. CANTON'S NAVY STRENGTHENED

Three Mutinous Cruisers

JOIN SOUTH CHINA PATROL

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, July 10. Canton's naval force is strengthened by the three cruisers, Haichi, Haihsin and Shaocho which, it is said, have been given permission to join the South China patrol under vice-Admiral Chang Chi Ying.

The captains of the three ships have avowed their loyalty to the South-west authorities and stand firm in their denunciation of vice-Admiral Shen Hung Lih for his oppressive measures. They are not inclined to be placed under the Ministry of Navy at Nanking, because the three commanding officers said that the Ministry had failed to take part in resisting Japanese aggression.

In view of their support of the South-west, the three warships are permitted to remain in Kwangtung waters and will be supplied with provisions, coal and ammunition. It was learned that the three cruisers will steam up into Whampoa to-day to become part of the Canton naval force under the first group army command.

However, there will be a further conference between the local military and the commanding officers of the three men-of-war as to the amount of appropriations per month, the cruising area of these vessels, their station of anchorage, and other duties.

More Expansion.

To expand the Canton navy, the first group army command has already ordered two gunboats from a shipbuilding company in England at a cost of $1,000,000 local currency payable in twelve instalments, this correspondent was exclusively informed. Three naval officers from Canton are now in England in connection with these two gunboats and will return aboard them as supercargo.

The two gunboats are capable of patrolling in the Pearl River and its upper reaches as well as cruising along the South China coast.

Several cadets were sent by the Canton Admiralty some time ago to study naval science and gunnery in England. They will remain there for about two years.

NO MORE WARSHIPS COMING SOUTH?

PEIPING, July 8.

Chinese sources this morning declare that the three warships which left Taku yesterday, returning to Tsingtao, are not going to Canton to join the other three mutinous vessels, which have already arrived there. This information at present lacks confirmation.—Reuter.

Reliable foreign observers yesterday saw one of the three warships which left Tsingtao on July 6, passing Weihaiwei on a southbound voyage, but whether the vessel was returning to Tsingtao or going further south was doubtful.—Reuter.

LIMITATION OF
COTTONProduction In U.S.
Too HighACREAGE 11.6% HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

New York, July 9.

The Government estimates of the cotton acreage is 40,796,000, which is 11.6 per cent. more than on July 1 of last year.

The estimate does not take into account any reduction that may be made under the programme of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The Secretary of Agriculture has not yet determined to take any acreage out of cultivation. If an acreage reduction is made the amount thereof will be announced in the future.

All states show acreage increases over last year, the greatest increases in the major states are shown in Oklahoma and Texas with 36 per cent. and 16 per cent. respectively.

Offer By Growers.

Mr. Wallace said that the growers in fourteen of the sixteen cotton states offered to take 5,566,169 acres from production in return for government cash, and the option of benefits. He also announced the campaign to obtain such agreements from the growers, which is to be closed to-night, would be extended to August 1, and a further extension would be made if necessary.—Reuter.

Roosevelt Interested.

New York, 9.

Pres. Roosevelt, as a cotton planter himself, has sent a letter to Mr. Wallace urging cotton producers to join in the acreage reduction programme promptly next week in order to reduce the supply and improve the "abnormally low" prices next year.—Reuter.

WARNING GIVEN TO AMERICANEW BOOM A DANGER

WASHINGTON, July 7.

THE rapid rise in commodity price and the stimulus given to industry by the speculative boom is not an unmixed blessing in the United States.

The depression saw heavy wage cuts in all directions and wages do not appear to be increasing to an extent enabling them to keep pace with rising costs.

Some anxiety is being felt in Washington, the attitude of the authorities being expressed by Brig-General Johnson, the Administrator of the National Recovery Act.

Worse Collapse Feared.

The recent surge in speculative production in American factories and the rise in prices of commodities are beginning to outstrip the purchasing power of the masses and there is a danger that this development will cause a new and worse collapse.

Brig-General Johnson appealed to industries to hasten in the formulation of codes for increasing wages and reducing hours of work.

Labour Report.

The danger is also emphasised in the American Federation of Labour Report, which states that workers' incomes increased by seven per cent. between the months of March and May, while the factory output jumped by thirty-five per cent.

The Labour Federation Report infers that much of the present feverish activity is purely speculative and it urges industry voluntarily to limit its profits until the workers are back to work at a living wage.—Reuter.

London, July 8.

THE Readership of Chinese Language and Social Economy, created at Manchester University, has been filled, by Mr. E. W. Mead, formerly of the Consular Service.

The appointment was made possible by contribution of £200 annually out of the £200,000 which the Universities of China Committee received from the Boxer Indemnity Fund.

Somewhat similar posts will be established in several universities. Professor W. H. Moberly, Vice-Chancellor of the Manchester University, at the Degree Day, proceedings, said he hoped that the Reader would help to interpret to English business communities the present industrial and commercial conditions in China and those in Britain to the Chinese.—Reuter.

GERMAN-VATICAN
CONCORDATPriests To Withdraw From Politics

Vatican City, July 9.

The Concordat which was initiated to-day, by Capt. von Papen and Pacelli, the Vatican Secretary of State, regulates for the first time in history the position of all Catholics in Germany.

It is understood the Concordat concedes to the complete withdrawal of Catholic priests and organisations from politics, but the Vatican draws a veil over the anti-Catholic demonstration in Germany.—Reuter.

Before leaving for Germany, Capt. von Papen made a statement to "clear the delimitation of the competence of the Church and the state in Germany to eliminate, in future, all differences between them."

Anti-Catholic Orders Rescinded.

Berlin, July 9.

Immediately the news of the initialing of the German-Vatican Concordat was received, Herr Hitler rescinded the dissolution orders in the case of Catholic organisations. He also ordered a stoppage of all measures against Catholic priests and other leaders of Roman Catholic bodies. Herr Hitler says the conclusion of the Concordat is sufficient guarantee that German Roman Catholics henceforth will unreservedly support the Nazi State.—Reuter.

IMPORTANT MEETING

London, July 9.

The "Gold Standard is doomed," declares the Sunday Express diplomatic correspondent who asserts the discussions at Paris, yesterday, showed the last effort to keep the world on gold is hopeless. France refused to consider the suggestion of weaker gold countries that the big French gold reserves should be put at the disposal of other gold countries.—Reuter.

COMPLETE AGREEMENT BY GOLD COUNTRIES

Paris, July 9.

Complete agreement has been reached by the gold countries bankers' meeting on technical ways and means for maintaining their currencies on the gold standard.

The proposals will be put in effect immediately.

A communiqué states that exchanges of views resulted in complete agreement on means of giving full practical efficacy to the declaration of gold standard governments favouring a complete maintenance of the gold standard at present rates.

The Central Banks of countries represented at the meeting will immediately put into application the technical arrangements, details of which were agreed upon at the meeting.

M. Moret afterwards pointed out that the banks represented at the meeting held between them over 40 per cent. of the world's gold reserves. Their decisions were unanimous, but they were not going to reveal the nature of the technical measures they were going to apply. They did not require the authority of the various governments, on the contrary, they were giving practical effect to a decision already taken by these governments. They were now going to sign a protocol placing their decisions on record.

CUT AND DRIED SCHEME

Paris, July 9.

The gold bloc countries have drawn up a cut and dried scheme to defend their currencies. A common fund has been created which will be thrown on the market wherever speculation threatens gold currencies.

The presence at the Conference of Mr. Ian Fraser the American head of the Bank of International Settlements is interpreted as meaning that the Baise Bank will act as liaison officer. It is also calculated to reassure Britain and United States' friendliness towards sterling and the dollar.—Reuter.

WEEK-END ACTIVITIES

London, July 9.

The main activity in Conference circles during the week-end was the canvassing for doubtful votes for to-morrow's bureau meeting at which argument on what subjects are discussable in the monetary sphere are expected to start again.

Considerable speculation was aroused when it was known that the British and French delegations were holding private conversations. So far it is impossible to ascertain their nature.

The only other development is that Mr. Hull, after further communications with President Roosevelt, made a statement reiterating his Bureau plea for the continuation of the Conference, enumerating items he considered capable of discussion, for instance, price levels, credit policy, individual external indebtedness, producers' agreements, prohibitions, restrictions, retaliation and other war breeding trade methods.

The general feeling is that the statement does not greatly supplement the previous plea by Mr. Hull to the Bureau.—Reuter.

CAMPAIGN FOR HIGHER
PRICE LEVELS

London, July 8.

It is learned that President Roosevelt last night prepared a message to the U.S. Delegation at the World Economic Conference outlining in greater detail his campaign for world price recovery as the immediate objective of the conference.

The consideration of the items which can usefully be discussed having regard to the gold bloc's objections to anything relating to monetary questions, occupied much time in London yesterday.

The gold bloc displayed soreness at an apparent attempt to narrow down this line of deliberation. Mr. Neville Chamberlain proposed that the original agenda be adhered to, adding that reservations could be made if unanimous conclusions were not possible. M. Bonnet, as the champion of the gold countries, opposed the proposal, but it was ultimately adopted.

The decision of the Bureau of the World Conference to proceed with its work to the utmost extent possible, necessitates a complete review of the conference's activities.

The situation will be clarified when on Monday the Bureau has before it the reports from the various sub-committees, several of which were in session during today.

Meanwhile, the position was considered at private meetings of the various delegations and there were consultations between the delegates at which the major issues before the conference were discussed.

CABINET MEETING

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, who took a prominent part in these consultations, presided over a meeting of the British Cabinet held at the House of Commons this evening.

At a meeting of the Monetary Sub-Committee, which has before it an agenda including credit policy, price levels, the limitation of currency fluctuations, exchange controls, the problems of indebtedness and the resumption of lending, Mr. Neville Chamberlain emphasised the difficulty of isolating that particular item for discussion without raising the others and he proposed all should be subject to further discussion.

The Roumanian delegate proposed and Mr. Bonnet (France) supported that the work of the Committee should cease on questions other than indebtedness.

This question might be profitably discussed while on the other side of the conference work, the questions of the conditions of production and marketing and the organisation of labour might be proceeded with.

Senator Couzens (United States) while recognising that there were differences of opinion as to how best to accomplish the primary purpose of the conference to relieve unemployment, drew attention to President Roosevelt's endeavours to raise the price levels and hoped that other countries each in its own way would assist.

He saw no reason for not continuing with the work before com-

President Roosevelt who has figured prominently in the World Economic Conference.

PROPOSAL CARRIED

Sir Henry Strakosch (India) submitted that the exclusion of monetary questions from consideration would conflict with the bureau conclusion to proceed.

The Italian, Swiss and Austrian delegates supported the Roumanian proposal. On a vote being taken the British proposal was approved by 25 to 15 with one abstent. There were several abstentions.

The Chairman, Signor Jung, said he would report the result of the debate to the Bureau.

OTHER OPPOSITION

At a joint meeting of the various sub-committees of the Economic Commission to consider future work, a proposal that the sub-committees on the co-ordination of production and marketing of sugar, timber, wine, coal, tea, tin, copper and silver should continue was not opposed. The silver question is also being dealt with by a sub-committee of the Financial Commission.—Reuter and British Wireless.

IMPORTANT MEETING TO-DAY

London, July 8.

THE fate of the world economic conference will be decided on Monday. In the meantime, there is no justification to heed the reports that the conference will adjourn in August and reassemble in the Autumn. The position is far too uncertain to make a confident prediction.

The stabilisation argument continues to stick in the gullet of the gold bloc countries and induces them to insist that until this is accomplished, no finality in other directions may be expected.

Dr. Colijn, the Dutch Premier, as one of the prominent lights of the Conference, when questioned as to whether the Bureau is likely to exercise its over-riding powers, shrugged his shoulders and remarked significantly, "Let them try it."—Reuter.

TUSSLE EXPECTED

London, July 8.

To-day's activities of the World Economic Conference delegates were chiefly confined to informal meetings, at which it is presumed preparations are being made for Monday's tussle over the new scope of the Conference.

The Bureau will then have the opinions of the Economic and Monetary Committees, preliminary to its exercising the right, if it so deems desirable, to override their decisions.

In consequence of the variance of the views manifested yesterday the whole issue may be re-fought in the Bureau, behind closed doors.—Reuter.

TO CURB EXCHANGE FLUCTUATIONS

Paris, July 8.

The Governors of the central banks of the gold bloc countries, together with Mr. Leon Fraser, head of the Bank of International Settlements are now conferring on measures to curb exchange fluctuations so as to keep currencies firm and steady on gold communicate is being issued later.—Reuter.

HOW THE VOTING WILL GO

A study of the Bureau representation of 18 members shows that if it comes to a vote on the subject of the non-gold countries' proposal to continue the monetary side of the agenda in all its ramifications, instead of curtailing the discussions to indebtedness, the result will be very close.

The Argentine, Britain, United States, Canada, China, Japan and Sweden favour the all-embracing continuation of the Conference, while Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Italy, Holland and Spain opposed this view at yesterday's sub-committee vote.

Miss Round Beaten by Jack Crawford Wins
Mrs. W. Moody Singles Title

UNPLEASANT INCIDENT MARS A GREAT MATCH

London, July 8.
Helen Wills-Moody beat Dorothy Round, the British hope, by 6-4, 6-8, 6-3 to-day to win the Women's Singles Championship at Wimbledon for the sixth time in her career.
Jack Crawford, the 25-year-old Australian Davis Cup captain, completed a brilliant "double" yesterday when he defeated Ellsworth Vines, the holder, after a gruelling five-set struggle to win the Men's Singles Championship at Wimbledon.

UMPIRE REVERSES HIS DECISION

An unpleasant incident which occurred through a line umpire's decision marred what would have been one of the greatest women's matches in the history of the tournament.

In the final of the Men's Doubles Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon (France), the holders, beat R. Nunez and Jiro Satoh (Japan) 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Only Mrs. Lambert Chambers, the British player, has a better record than "Poker Face Helen." She won the title on seven occasions. Suzanne Lenglen won it six times.

Miss Round is the first player to win a set from Mrs. Moody for six years.

Mrs. Moody again subdued her stroke power and was content to produce no greater speed than her opponent, who drove splendidly, but who failed to show much court craft.

Miss Round also missed opportunities at the net by ragged volleying.

In the first set Miss Round led 3-2, but the holder levelled at 3-all. At 4-all the American took the ninth game from love-thirty, and the tenth from love 15 to win the first set.

Miss Round won the second set at 8-6 after one of the worst incidents that has even happened at Wimbledon.

The British girl was leading 7-6, and the score was vintage to Mrs. Moody, when Miss Round hit the ball beyond the baseline and 7-all was registered.

Then came a procession of line-men to the umpire's chair, and after delays the umpire reversed the score to 6-4. Miss Round resumed her service and won two points, Mrs. Moody being distressed. The American's lapse cost her the set.

Injustice Sensed.

The crowd sensed an injustice and gave Mrs. Moody a number of rousing demonstrations. The incident marred what would have been the greatest women's battle since the days of Suzanne Lenglen.

LEHTINEN BREAKS BRITISH 3 MILE RECORD

LONDON, July 8.
LEHTINEN, the Finnish Olympic runner, shattered the British record for the Three Mile at the British A.A.A. Meeting at the White City to-day. One other record was smashed when Heljass broke the Putting the Weight figures.

Lord Burghley was beaten by his old rival Facelli and Dr. F. P. Reid was beaten in the 100 Yards by Berger, a Dutch entrant. Madarasz (Hungary) recorded the second foreign victory at the meeting when he won the Throwing the Discus with a distance of 144ft. 11ins. This effort beat P. Birmingham's winning throw last year by 5ft. 5ins.

Johnson, the English representative, carried off the Seven Miles Walk in 53mins. 1.3/secs., which was 1min. 38.1/secs. slower than A. H. G. Pope's time last year. Britton, the Irish contender, won the Throwing the Hammer event with a distance of 147ft. 6ins., an inch short of G. Walsh's effort last year.

Whitehead, the Northern champion, won the Half Mile in the good time of 1 min. 54.1/5 secs., beating Scrimshaw by a yard. Pearce was third.

Whitehead's time was 2.2/5 secs. better than T. Hampson's time last year. Hampson broke the world's record for 800 Metres at the Olympic Games after winning this event.

SARAZEN AND EASTERBROOK TIE FOR THIRD PLACE

St. Andrews, July 9.

Shute won the British Open Golf Title, which made the tenth successive American victory. The first tie, twenty-one years ago, was also at St. Andrews, when Wethered drew with Hutchinson in 1912.

Craig Wood hung a mill-stone round his neck early on by driving into the Swilcan Burn, when he had to remove his shoes and stockings to play out.

Shute played most confidently and held the lead throughout.

WIND INTERFERES WITH PLAY

LONDON, July 8.

Securing a lead of three strokes at the end of eighteen holes Densmore Shute won the British Open Golf Championship at St. Andrews to-day when he beat Craig Wood by five strokes in the play off over 36 holes.

Shute and Craig Wood, both of whom are American Ryder Cup players, tied with an aggregate of 292 at the conclusion of the four rounds on Friday.

To-day's scores were as follow:—
Craig Wood 78+76=154.
Densmore Shute 73+74=149.

The following were their scores in the first four rounds:

Craig Wood 77, 72, 68, 76

Densmore Shute 73, 73, 73, 73.

Gene Sarazen, the holder, tied for third place with Syd Easterbrook (Britain) and Leo Diegel, all of whom returned aggregates of 293.

The lowest championship score to be recorded at St. Andrews was Bobby Jones, 285 in 1927. The lowest in the history of the British Open was Gene Sarazen's 283 at Sandwich last year.

THRILLING CONTEST

St. Andrews, July 8.

The most thrilling British Open Golf Championship for many years must go once again to America. Yesterday Craig Wood and Densmore Shute, both Ryder cup players, tied for the first place with an aggregate score of 292 for the 72 holes. They will play off over 36 holes to-day.

An increasing wind made the final round the most difficult and resulted in an upset among the leaders.

There were 297 entries for the St. Andrews classic only nine short of the record in the 1930 championship at Hoylake. America headed the foreign challenge with 14 representatives, including ten Ryder Cup players. France (10), Spain (6), Canada (3), the Argentine (2), and New Zealand, Denmark and Egypt (one each).

It seemed at one time very likely that the trophy would go to Britain for the first time in ten years when Syd Easterbrook, the British Ryder Cup player, was out in 37 in the final round.

Requiring a 38 to win, disaster overtook the Kent player at the fourteenth, which is par five.

Easterbrook took a seven and needed a three at the final hole to

THE RIDING SCHOOL AT MA TAU KOK

WHERE THE NOVICE LEARNS AMID PLEASANT SURROUNDINGS

(By Our Special Correspondent)

Is there any riding to be got in Kowloon? That is a question which is rather frequently asked by those who are keen on this very pleasant form of sport and who, unfortunately, are not in a position to own a pony.

It is indeed very surprising that in a place like Hong Kong where sport of any kind receives so much encouragement from the authorities, there is not very much support coming for this department of sport. Until a year or two ago, it was well-nigh impossible for anybody to get any riding at all. By riding, one must understand that I mean no decent hack ponies were available, but this has been remedied to a very great extent and the public can enjoy riding at will, thanks to the enterprise of a few Russian gentlemen.

When the Hong Kong Jockey Club moved to their new and very modern stables in Wong Nei Cheong, the old stables at Causeway Bay, formerly known as the "Kennedy Stables" were taken over by the gentlemen mentioned above and they were converted into what is now known as the Hong Kong Riding School. This proved very popular, for not only were lessons given to those who desired to learn how to handle a pony, but the management also made arrangements for a certain number of animals to be set aside for hire.

The writer has himself taken out some of these ponies a number of times, and because the animals were so well-trained that they could be lived without being a nuisance even to the novice, they proved very popular and the Hong Kong Riding School earned the deep gratitude of a number of people.

In Ma Tau Kok.

However, the stables soon changed hands and the site on which it had stood from time immemorial was destined to be converted into a small city away from the city as the new owners planned to put up a number of up-to-date buildings on it.

Electric v. Recreio.

So that their many patrons would not be disappointed, the management of the riding school began to look around for a suitable site and they eventually found an ideal spot in Ma Tau Kok, and here now, a number of people may be seen every day taking lessons on how to ride a pony while others take the animals out for a ride in the evenings and sometimes in the early hours of the morning.

I went to the riding school one day last week and saw a number of ponies, including an Australian, housed in a shed about 20 yards from the main road. By the stable is a small wooden building and this, I was informed, was the office, store-room and the men's quarters. About thirty yards further in is a fenced in area about the size of four or five tennis courts and it is here that the beginners are taught the many tricks about riding.

An Ideal Place.

This place in an ideal spot for a riding school as it is away from the city and with so little motor traffic about, there is no danger to even the beginners if they should want to take their mounts out on the roads. It is, however, the rural aspect of the place that makes it so appealing and although I do not think the people concerned are contemplating permanent stables yet, I cannot but feel that more people would go out to the place if they knew how pleasant it really is, quite apart of course, from the main attraction which is an enjoyable ride on perfectly trained ponies.

During the last month or so, part of the stable has been moved over to Repulse Bay and the ponies are housed in the ground floor of the garage. When I went out the other day, I saw four ponies there but I have since learnt that if the support forthcoming warrants it there is a possibility that more animals will be housed here.

Whatever step the managements takes, however, it is to be hoped that they will still keep up the school in Kowloon for it is really an asset to the place.

UGAKI IS OPTIMISTIC

THINKS JAPAN BETTER OFF THAN MOST OTHER COUNTRIES

General Ugaki, Governor-General of Korea, in a Press interview said that being out of touch with Japanese politics, he cannot form any clear idea of the present situation, which is evidently complex and delicate. As for himself, he prefers a clarified atmosphere in the peninsula to the gloomy atmosphere of Tokyo. Free from political ambitions, to him the rule of Korea is of paramount importance.

Some observers seem to foresee the Seiyukai's final split up due to internal dissensions, but such a contingency will most probably be averted. Nor is it likely that the Saito Cabinet will fall before the next session of the Diet.

With regard to the compilation of the Government-General's new budget, General Ugaki said, a fair understanding has been reached. Details will be discussed with the Government authorities when the Vice-General visits Tokyo either at the end of July or early in August.

The Governor-General intends to embark on enterprises relating to gold production, cotton plantation, the woollen industry and betterment of agrarian interests on a large scale, but for financial reasons it will be difficult to start them on the desired scale from the next fiscal year.

BRITISH GOVT. AND INDIA

Political Strife Depreciated

KIPLING JOINS THE NEW LEAGUE

India was the big subject at political gatherings, and while noted politicians were defending the Government's policy, the India Defence League were announcing a notable recruit in the person of Mr. Rudyard Kipling.

Sir Kingsley Wood, the Postmaster-General, speaking at a Conservative fete at Gainsborough, said that nothing could be worse for India if proposals concerned it became part of party political warfare in this country, with a reversal of policy at any change in the Government.

"If that happened," he said, "India would, indeed, then be lost to the Empire."

Not Socialist Plans.

He agreed that the future of India gave rise to legitimate apprehensions on the part of many in the Conservative Party. He was not one to deny their purpose or to question their sincerity, but those who opposed the course the Government was taking should, and no doubt would, give similar credit to Mr. Baldwin, to the Viceroy, and the great Indian administrators, who, amongst others, were responsible for the present proposals.

It had been said that the proposals in the White Paper were the product of the Socialist Party. As a matter of fact, it was the work of representatives of all parties in the State, and its persistent critics in the House of Commons were the Socialist Opposition, who, so far as it was possible to judge at this or any time by their utterance, were desirous of giving immediately full self-government to India. Such a course would mean anarchy and rebellion.

"There are real dangers and much risk," said Sir Kingsley, "but they would not be removed, but intensified if this country sat still. It is one of the most responsible tasks of this Parliament. It is well that it is being dealt with by a Government of representative men of all parties in the State."

Serving Own Ends.

Mr. A. Duff Cooper, speaking at the Hornsey Conservative fete at Alexandra Park, said that one thing only could break the Conservative Party and that was the question which some people were seeking to put into the forefront of party politics and which throughout our political history had always been carefully kept out of party politics. That was the question of India.

"Let us try to realise how small is the division which divides the Conservative Party on the question of India," he said, "and let us try to minimise that division. Those who seek to make much of it are neither good Conservatives nor good patriots, but had politicians who are seeking to stir up this cause to serve their own ends."

It had been said that there was no mandate for the White Paper policy, but was it likely that if they went to the country there would be an increased majority for extreme Conservatism?

"Those who are opposing the White Paper policy know perfectly well that if they went to the country they would be much more inclined to support a policy going further than the White Paper than would the House of Commons to-day."

The Liberal View.

Sir Robert Hamilton, speaking at a Liberal week-end school at Storrington, Sussex, stated that to go back on promises which had been held out of ultimate self-government would have a disastrous effect.

There were great diversities in regard to race, language, customs, and government, which found great obstacles, but there were also unifying influences. There was the remarkable influence of the English language, the education imparted by our literature, loyalty, and the general agreement that India should have self-government.

Viscount Mersey declared that many of them were nervous about the proposals, but they had gone so far that it was to be feared, it would be more fatal to retreat than to go forward.

Lesson of Hitchin.

Captain Douglas Hacking, Parliamentary Under-Secretary to the Home Office, speaking at Bradford-on-Avon, Wilts, said the volume of our trade with India depended chiefly on the good will of the Indian people, and neither armies, navies, nor air forces could compel the Indian people to purchase British goods if good will was not there.

Successive British Governments had promised that India should move forward in the direction of a greater measure of self-government, and if we held back what had so definitely been promised we were certain to create ill feeling.

Quarrelling among themselves before they knew the definite proposals of the Government was playing right into the hands of Socialists, as the Hitchin election result showed.

Kipling's Decision.

The India Defence League announced on Saturday that Mr. Rudyard Kipling has consented to become a vice-president and that Major-General Sir Percy D. Cox and Sir Charles S. Bayly have agreed to serve on the committee of the League.

The League also reported that subscriptions and applications for membership continued to flow in.

The movement represented by the League for its aim the preservation of life, peace, and order in India and its retention in the British Empire.

GOLD CUP DAY AT ASCOT

BRILLIANT DISPLAY OF FASHION

THE KING AND QUEEN PRESENT

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, June 22. Brilliant sunshine lasted throughout the day for Gold Cup Day at Ascot yesterday, when there was a very large attendance and the usual display of smart garden-party frocks. The State procession took place, the Royal party arriving soon after 1 o'clock from Windsor Castle.

The King, who was in grey with a grey top-hat, drove with the Queen, whose dress of parchment-coloured georgette had inset panels of heavy cream lace. A short cape of the same materials completed with a high rolled black collar was worn over the dress. Her Majesty's toque was of swathed gold tissue, and her jewels were pearls and diamonds.

The Prince of Wales and Prince George arrived from Sunningdale and the Duke and Duchess of York from Royal Lodge, Windsor Park. The Duchess was in ivory corded silk crepe, with a three-quarter-length coat bordered with white fox fur. Her hat was of ivory straw with a cluster of cream silk flowers at the back. The Princess Royal looked cool in white crepe, patterned in a conventional design in pale green. Her hat of fine white straw had bands of green straw inset on the brim and across the crown.

The Duke of Connaught.

The Duke of Connaught and Prince Arthur of Connaught arrived from Bagshot Park. Princess Arthur of Connaught was in printed crepe de Chine in red and beige with a silver fox fur over her shoulders. Her hat was of cherry-red straw. Princess Helena Victoria, in palest mushroom-grey angeline lace and a brown tassel straw hat and blue fox fur, was a new-comer to the Royal circle this year at Ascot, as was also Lady Mand Carnegie, who was in ecru lace with a broad-brimmed brown straw hat.

Lady Patricia Ramsay chose a frock of broderie Anglaise in a deep shade of parchment finished with a wash of salmon-pink velvet. Ribbon of the same colour trimmed her large beige hat.

Flowered and patterned chiffons were much worn in the Royal Enclosure, with wide-skirted, frilled organdies and organdies for the younger visitors. Huge hats were much in evidence, and a good many were trimmed with flowers, garlands of mixed field flowers or large shoulder sprays frequently accompanying such dresses and hats.

The Duchess of Portland wore white chiffon with a floral pattern in bright blue matched by a velvet cape and her velvet cap. The Countess of Granard wore red, black, and white printed chiffon, with a black hat having a crown of bright red feathers. "Pattes." The Marchioness of Crowe was in black and white flowered chiffon; the Countess of Mar and Kellie in black and white chiffon with a short black coat; and the Marchioness of Abergavenny in printed crepe in grey and blue colourings with touches of pink, a panache of pinkish beige ospreys trimming her black hat.

The Duchess of Norfolk wore a dress of black and white plaid taffetas, the skirt finished with a ruche at the hem. Her black hat was bound with white ribbons. The Duke of Norfolk was present in the Royal party, and Lady Rachel Howard arrived from Cumberland Lodge wearing a white dress with a long navy-blue coat and blue-and-white hat.

Many diplomats and their wives were present and were invited to join the Royal luncheon-party in the King's private rooms. The Spanish Ambassador and Mme. Perez de Ayala, the latter in champagne crepe de Chine with a black hat; the Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Malbray, who was in brown and beige patterned crepe; the Polish Ambassador and the Italian Ambassador and Signora Grandi, the latter very simply dressed in beige crepe with a "Lephorn" hat trimmed with green, beige roses at the sides; and the Austrian Minister were among those invited to luncheon.

The Duchess of Sutherland wore a dress of stone-coloured satin with a wide-brimmed black hat; Lady Mary Crowe-Milnes was in red and white chiffon showing a small pattern and a red crinoline straw hat; Mme. de Marées van Swinderen (Continued on next column) wore a dress of ultramarine-blue georgette with bands of blue cocks' feathers at the elbows and a hat of bright blue straw; Lady Davson, accompanied by Sir Edward Davson, was in periwinkle-blue and white chiffon with a hat to match, and the Hon. Eame Glyn was in pink and white figured chiffon with a rose-coloured hat. Hydrangea-blue and mauve colourings figured on the chiffon dress worn by the Countess of Rosebery. Her hat had a very large blue straw brim and a crown of satin of a deeper blue, and she wore a spray of pinkish orchids on one shoulder.

Mrs. Baldwin.

Mrs. Stanley Baldwin was dressed entirely in a shade of deep sea de Nil green. Her georgette dress was inset with panels of lace to match, and her green straw hat was trimmed with roses. Countess Fitzwilliam wore white chiffon, finely figured with black, with a border of jade green to her cape sleeves and cross-over corsage. Her bowler-shaped hat of white straw was draped with a fine black veil. With her in the stand sat the Countess of Wharfedale in a black and white spotted chiffon dress with a black hat.

Lady Sibell Lygon was in brown, with a pink cloth "fex" hat; Lady Beatrice Pole-Carew wore chiffon in grey and pink with a bird design, and a black hat; Lady Mary Cavendish, who, with Lord Richard Cavendish, took a party to luncheon in the Paddock, was in palest duck-egg-blue satin, with a stitched crepe hat to match; Mrs. James Horlick was in black and white chiffon and lace; Mrs. Euan Wallace chose a patterned dress of many colours for her dress, cut with a frilled cape, and Lady Brougham was in pale aquamarine-blue crepe de Chine, with a white hat. Viscountess Charlemont, who was with Viscount Charlemont and Miss Rosalind De Renzy Martin, wore a gown of blue organdie with a blue picture hat.

The Marchioness of Dufferin and Ava was in bright blue and red chiffon, with a green lace cape, and wore wristlets of red roses; Lady Plunket, in a royal blue woolen crepe dress with a tiny velvet shoulder cape, and a small flat bright blue straw hat; the Countess of Pembroke in white and black chiffon; and Mrs. Ray Atherton in brown and white organdie in a design of bold wavy stripes. Lady (Gifford) Fox had short brown velvet sleeves to her beige crinkled crepe dress, and a brown and white picture hat; the Hon. Lady Bingham had dovegrey satin with a black-beretta cap, and carried a square black parasol bordered with a deep black silk fringe; Grace Lady New borough had starch-blue chiffon trimmed with ecru coarse lace, and wore a blue and white straw hat; the Hon. Lady Morrison-Bell was in shades of mushroom-pink and brown, with revers to her coat of the darker colour; Lady Joan Verney wore a printed chiffon dress in poppy red, yellow, and blues; and Lady Anne Huoloke an organdie dress in stinging colour, inset with bands of brown organdie. Her hat was of brown straw, with bands of beige organdie set in the crown.

The Countess of Durham, walking with the Earl of Durham, was in putty-coloured satin patterned with alternate dull and shiny stripes, and her hat was of black straw simply trimmed with ribbon. Lady Dalrymple-Champneys, who was with Sir Weldon Dalrymple-Champneys and Colonel and Mrs. Spencer Pratt, was in white heavy crepe with touches of white fur and had a diamond brooch pinned to her white hat; Lady Jane Egerton was in blue and white printed crepe de Chine; Lady Joan Phillips also chose a dress of china-blue and white figured crepe. The Hon. Mrs. Francis Curzon was in powder-blue lace and crinkled crepe. Baroness Burton was in white angeline lace. Mr. and Lady Ada Boyd watched the racing from the stand, the latter in mushroom-brown georgette with a small brown hat, and the Hon. Mrs. Charles Lambton had a dress of alternate stripes of blue and white and white and blue figured crepe. The Lady Mayores, accompanied by the Lord Mayor, was in brown and cream printed chiffon with a broad-brimmed brown straw hat and carried a cream lace sunshade, and the Hon. Mrs. Wilfred Engerton had also chosen a brown and white dress.

GOLD STANDARD DOOMED

The Soviet abstained from voting yesterday, and Hungary is expected to vote with the gold bloc countries while Mexico will probably vote with the non-gold countries. Thus the voting would appear to be in favour of the non-gold countries by 8 to 7, with Russia neutral.

Interviewed by Reuters this morning, General Ma Chan Shan stated that he had no intention to accept the appointment as member of the Military Commission, which was announced at Nanking yesterday. "SHE DONE HIM WRONG"

NEW YORK STORY OF NINETIES

"She Done Him Wrong," the picture which began at the Queen's Theatre yesterday, is a tale of the New York Bowery of the Nineties. It is May West's first starring vehicle and in it she gives a very convincing display. The picture opens with some street scenes of old New York, but the action of the story proper takes place almost entirely in a disreputable beer-hall in the Bowery. May West is cast as Lady Lou, well-known for her love of diamonds and the men who can provide her with them. Her present admirer is the owner of the beer-hall, played by Noah Beery Sr. The story, interesting at the start has a very good climax.

Unknown to Miss West, Beery's chief line is the trafficking of young girls. He kidnaps them and sends them to South America as "entertainers" in "dance-hall." In this he is helped by "Russian Rose" and "Serge Stanoff." It is chiefly due to their attempt to kidnap "Sally," a girl who was saved when about to commit suicide in the Hall, that they are finally tracked down and arrested by the "Hawk," a mysterious detective who has been on their trail for some time, and who turns out to be none other than "Capt. Cummings," a pretended missionary worker in the district.

There is also a side-plot about an old admirer of Miss West's who finding that she had double-crossed him, breaks gaol and attempts to murder her. The way this is twisted into the final climax is very neatly done and reflects a lot on the able direction of that actor-director, Lowell Sherman. Chief honours for the picture go to Miss West, but fine performances are also put up by Cary Grant, (Capt. Cummings) Noah Beery (Gus Jordan), Owen Moore, (the escaped convict), and Gilbert Roland as the fickle Serge.

Cary Grant was extremely convincing as the mission worker, but, when revealed at the end as "the Hawk," was even better, while Owen Moore, famous member of a famous brotherhood, gave a realistic portrayal as Chick Clark, the admirer of Lady Lou who goes to prison for stealing diamonds for her.

USSURI RIVER INCIDENT

RUSSIAN'S SEARCH STEAMER

CARGO AND GUARDS SEIZED

HARBIN, July 8. GREAT excitement has been caused here by news of the detention by U.S.S.R. frontier guards of a Manchukuo steamer. According to the reports which have been received in official circles, the steamer Tungshang was stopped by the frontier guards, inside Manchukuo waters, on the Ussuri River, near Hulin.

The ship was detained, it is alleged, while the guards carried out an intensive search of the vessel, finally confiscating the cargo and capturing ten Russian emigre steamer guards.

Strong Steps. The invaders then released the Tungshang and returned to Soviet territory.

Officials of the Manchukuo Government are of opinion that when the report is confirmed, they will take the strongest measures to recover the men and the cargo.

U.S. DOLLAR LESS FEVERISH

TREASURY HELPING TO KEEP DOLLAR DOWN

London, July 8.

THE American dollar was much less feverish on the Exchange to-day. After closing at 4.71 1/2 last night, it receded slightly to 4.74 at the end of to-day's session.

The only feature was the firming of gold currencies against sterling due to offerings of the latter from the Continent.

German marks firmed up to 13.88 1/2 as compared with 13.63 1/2 last night.

The general impression in the United States, according to the well-informed Journal of Commerce, of New York, is that the pound-dollar rate will be stabilised at least, temporarily when the pound reaches parity.

Traders believe that the United States Treasury is taking an active part in the exchange market and has converted some balances into sterling to keep the dollar down.—Reuter.

FUTURE OF RUBBER

EARL OF PLYMOUTH OPTIMISTIC

London, July 7.

RUBBER is not doomed to dissolve into an industry of small holdings, declared the Earl of Plymouth, the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, in the course of a speech at a lunch of the Incorporated Society of the Planters of Malaya.

Lord Plymouth said it was far from being a career of the past for skilled and adventurous Britons.

He added that there are small but definite signs of improvement in the rubber industry and said that there could be no doubt that the world will require large quantities of rubber in the future and that new uses would constantly be found.—Reuter.

RESTRICTION STILL UNDECIDED

AMSTERDAM, July 8.

The Dutch Government is still examining the rubber restriction plans, but it is understood that there is no intention of an official communique being issued in the near future.—Reuter.

JAVA SUGAR MARKET

Messrs. Pentreath & Co. have forwarded us the following report dated June 22nd from the MacLaine Sugar Co., Ltd., Sourabaya.

India and China are showing little to no interest at present.

West of Suez: Business has continued though on a more limited scale than recently.

The N.I.V.A.S. Total sales now amount to—

079,943 Tons Superior
8,739 Tons Superior seconds
264,131 Tons Browns
14,508 Tons Molasses.

Included in the Browns quantity is a cargo for account of New Zealand refiners.

Statistics: Our usual figures are enclosed and at the risk of depressing both our readers and ourselves we give below a conservative forecast of what stocks in Java will be a year hence:—

Available 1-6-33 ex Crops
1931/2/3 2,343,302

Estimated N.I.V.A.S. production Crop 1933 June to November 1,240,451

3,583,753

Estimated Local Consumption June 1933 to May 1934 at 27,500 T. per month. The figure for the period April 1932 to March 1933 has been established at 372,988 T. 3,253,783

Estimated exports June 1933 to May 1934. The figure for the period May 1931 to April 1932 was 1,647,133 and for May 1932 to April 1933, 1,299,738. On the same percentage fall (16 per cent.) we arrive at the figure of 1,091,600

Available 1-6-34 excluding May production 1934 2,161,953

Crop the total of which is expected to be round about 500,000 T.

We doubt whether the most pessimistically inclined could complain at our estimates of local consumption and exports, whilst an optimist would add at least 30,000 T. to the former figure and perhaps even 200 to 300,000 tons to the latter, mainly in anticipation of heavy shipments to West of Suez. He would thus arrive at a reduction in stocks a year hence of between 400 and 500,000 T.

In a quiet market, we quote as follows:—

THE PORT OF GDYNIA

EXTENSION WORKS INTENSIFY DANZIG DANGER.

Warsaw.—The new Polish harbour of Gdynia is to be still enlarged, it is announced here to-day, in spite of the fact that the Free City of Danzig is already suffering considerably from the lack of trade and despite the decision of the Council of the League of Nations ordering Poland to utilise the Danzig harbour to the utmost capacity as provided for by the peace treaties before any further extension of Gdynia is undertaken.

The authorities of the port of Gdynia have just decided to construct timber storage yards to the capacity of 270,000 cubic yards, with railway sidings and transshipment cranes, although high timber transshipment was considered Danzig's inalienable occupation because Danzig lies at the mouth of the River Vistula along which timber has been floated for centuries, while Gdynia is an artificially constructed harbour on no river whatever.

The construction of an enormous new herring warehouse with a capacity of 8,000 barrels is also going on, although the herring trade was hitherto one of the specialties of Danzig. Besides, a new private herring warehouse will soon be erected by the Polish-Dutch fishing company "Mopol."

As the Danzig and German newspapers point out, this concentrated effort on extending Gdynia is inevitably plunging Danzig into still greater ruin and economic misery and naturally increases the widespread political bitterness and intensifies the danger of disruption in this zone already so highly charged with politically explosive material.
